

CALL FOR PAPERS

INDIANA UNDERGRADUATE JOURNAL OF COGNITIVE SCIENCE

An Online Journal of Research in Cognitive Science

The Indiana Undergraduate Journal of Cognitive Science (IUJCS) is seeking submissions for its online publication. Part of the iCogSci project at Indiana University, IUJCS invites submissions of original work by undergraduate students in cognitive science or other related disciplines. Submissions may come from any area within cognitive science including, but not limited to: artificial intelligence, anthropology, biology, computer science, linguistics, philosophy, psychology and neuroscience.

Submissions are accepted on a continuous rolling basis, and will automatically be added to the submission pool for the latest upcoming volume. The deadline for the Fall 2011 issue is Friday, August 19. Applicants can expect to hear back about the status of their submissions by Friday, September 16, at which time we will also notify applicants of any suggested revisions. Interested authors are asked to submit their work electronically to the IUJCS Editorial Board at icogsci@indiana.edu.

For more information and for detailed submission instructions, please visit the iCogSci website at cogs.indiana.edu/icogsci/journal.html, or contact the Executive Editor at icogsci@indiana.edu.

The Indiana Undergraduate Journal of Cognitive Science is sponsored by iCogSci and the Indiana University Cognitive Science Program.
